

What's Inside Construction Performance[®]

As the North American construction industry faces extraordinary growth over the next several years, contractors and owners will need a property insurer that can keep pace. With AIG Construction Performance[®], clients benefit from expert underwriting, claims and available risk engineering services provided by dedicated construction risk specialists. AIG offers more than just property insurance—clients can receive robust solutions that include carefully constructed risk management programs, multinational coordination and comprehensive loss prevention services.

AIG's Construction Property team is a leading provider of first party insurance solutions for builder's risk exposures, insuring some of the world's most complex industrial, commercial, civil and infrastructure projects. Our builder's risk insurance can be customized to combine property damage coverage (including catastrophe coverages) with other specialty coverages to help address the wide-ranging exposures of construction projects.

WHY AIG Construction Performance

AIG Construction Property is structured to support the market we serve, with dedicated underwriters that offer local knowledge and have the required underwriting authority to deliver creative solutions to our customers.

Going Beyond Insurance

Our risk engineering team with decades of experience can create tailored solutions that will empower clients to reduce risk and recover as quickly as possible after a loss. Our world-class risk engineering specialists are equipped to offer a complete assessment of hazards related to occupancy, natural disaster, and security to help our clients build an effective program to protect their construction project. AIG's team of dedicated risk engineers average nearly 25 years of experience across all industries.

Partnering to Prevent Loss

We understand how crucial maintaining the project schedule is for builder's risk clients. We are able to help companies in protecting their construction project and completing it on-time as we offer a global network, outstanding underwriting capacity, wide-ranging risk management and loss prevention advice, and a superb claims service. In-depth, ongoing partnerships are also central to our approach. We work closely with our clients to understand their operations and identify the critical exposures that may threaten their construction project.

Outstanding Claims Service

AIG has experience handling large and complex construction claims, with a proven record of helping Construction Property clients mitigate damages and recover expeditiously from losses. Specialized property and construction claims teams are authorized to make rapid coverage determinations and advance payments to help clients minimize project delays and resume construction as quickly as possible.

Coverage that Crosses Borders

As your business grows, you can turn to AIG as a trusted partner for customized and seamless multinational insurance solutions. With a global network of over 500 commercial property underwriters, 350 commercial property claims specialists and 550 property risk engineers throughout the world, you can count on AIG's exceptional breadth of products, local market knowledge, and outstanding claims service across our global network to handle your business needs.
