

Cyber Loss Control

AIG can help businesses:

Get ahead of the cyber risk curve

Understand their cyber exposures

Remediate their cyber exposures

Cyber risks are recognized as one of the top business risks in every geography around the world. We are committed to helping our clients get ahead of the cyber risk curve by showing them how to proactively manage their cybersecurity, including how to understand and recognize their exposures and how to remediate their exposures.

Wide-ranging capabilities that reduce a client's total cost of risk

Two decades of cyber claims insights

For the last two decades we've insured thousands of businesses and millions of individuals against cyber losses. Our Cyber Risk Consulting team, who have on average 20+ years of individual IT and cybersecurity experience, leverage the lessons we have learned from the cyber claims we've handled to help our clients understand the threats they face, the actions they should take, and the impact those actions have on their cyber risk readiness.

World class cyber risk prevention

Our risk consultants and our strategic cyber risk partners deliver a range of services to help clients proactively fortify their cyber defense, including cyber awareness and employee training, vulnerability scanning across our clients' networks, evaluations of clients' internet facing systems, modeling the maturity of cyber security systems, blocking blacklisted IP addresses and supply chain cyber evaluations, defense reviews and risk rating.

All sizes and sectors

Businesses of all sizes, industrial sectors and locations face intensifying cyber exposures in a cloud connected world and AIG has a successful track record of preventing malicious content from entering clients' environments. We have helped many businesses (including those that considered themselves to be well defended) recognize cyber weaknesses, identify unknown issues and detect infections that other specialists had missed.
